Sixth Sense

Project Proposal – Diary

We, Sixth Sense, have decided to go for a Diary system where in it can do a CRUD element - Create, update, and delete method. Then users can create their own account in the system allowing them to have their own personal space to input their notes. As presented, they can also do update and delete their notes as well as their profile if they want to. This Diary system will allow our users to create a note that will input texts, add images to their desired notes. Other features for our system includes upon creating the note/s that the user made, it will display the current time stamp on when it was created, an emotional stat for when the user wants to add their current mood, a log in message where our users will see where he/she is logged in, he/she can also add motivational quotes in their desired notes and data sorting where our users can tag their memorable notes.
